Tom Holmoe

College

After graduating from High School Holmoe played as a cornerback and safety at Brigham Young University from 1978-1982. As a sophomore in 1980, he led the Western Athletic Conference with seven interceptions. Holmoe went on to earn all -WAC honors as a senior in 1982. During his four years with the Cougars, BYU won four straight WAC titles.

Professional

Holmoe was drafted in the fourth round of the 1983 NFL Draft by the San Francisco 49ers. He played seven seasons for the 49ers, winning Super Bowls with the team in 1984, 1988, and 1989.

Coaching

After retiring from pro football, Holmoe entered the coaching ranks. In 1992, Holmoe accepted an offer from Bill Walsh to join his staff at Stanford University as the defensive backs coach. Holmoe remained at Stanford for two seasons, helping the Cardinal become the Pac-10 co-conference champions in 1992. Holmoe then returned to the 49ers, serving as George Seifert's defensive backfield coach for two seasons. As defensive backfield coach, he won a fourth Super Bowl in 1994. Two years later in 1996, Holmoe joined the University of California, Berkeley staff as defensive coordinator under Steve Mariucci. Following Mariucci's departure to the NFL, Holmoe assumed duties as head coach of the Golden Bears' football program from 1997

Athletic Administration

After resigning from Cal, Holmoe returned to BYU to serve as Associate AD. In March 2005, he was appointed the 12th AD of the University, and the first to oversee both men's and women's athletics. Under his leadership, the Cougars have achieved enormous success, winning 14 conference championships in the 2006-2007 academic year alone. Holmoe has had particular success with his two most conspicuous coaching hires, BYU head football coach Bronco Mendenhall, who has led BYU's football team back to national prominence, and head men's basketball coach Dave Rose, who has returned BYU's men's basketball team to consistent Mountain West Conference championships and NCAA tournament appearances.
